“ I still can'

t believe it. Everyday I wake up thinking its just a bad dream. I never went to any of your Bible studies but had a strong urge to go to your last one so I went. The atmosphere in your home was full of love as you served us and the night reminded me of the book of Acts and the fellowship Christians had in the beginning. We had in depth serious discussion as well as intense laughter. Everyone went home, yet again I felt an urge, an urge to stay a while longer. We caught up on stuff as you gave me a tour of your new house and you built me up as I told you of my struggles in daily life. You were that kind of guy. Everytime we were together you expressed your love for me as well as God' s love for me. Your entire personality was encompassed in love. I'm dealing with grief in ways I' ve never experienced here on earth, yet I feel God making me stronger through it all. And now that you have had victory over this life and won, it makes me want to have that same victory and win all the more. Your a champion brother. The Bible says you' ll know a true believer by their actions and you have certainly proven yourself as a genuine soldier my friend! Even though it hurts so bad, I believe God has planted a seed through your life and now every life you' ve touched will realize, by your unfaltering belief, that God is real, and that He loves us so very much! Get some rest brother, I've got some stuff I got to do yet, but I' ll see you on the other side soon enough! Life isn' t really life, its just a test to see if you can really handle true life and you' ve passed with flying colors! I know you' re more alive now than you'

ve ever been here on earth and I celebrate and am overjoyed that your life screamed JESUS!
